Trans-Atlantic Plane Is at Last Sighted

OVER HUNDRED INJURED; BIG DAMAGE DONE

PORTLAND, ME. REPORTED IT; LONG OVERDUE

Should Have Been Off Cape Cod at 1 p. m. This Afternoon

Washington, May 9.—(AP)—The Navy Department at 2:55 p. m. eastern time reported Captain Nungesser had passed over Portland, Maine.

BULLETIN

New York, May 9.—(AP)—The New York Evening Post says it has learned that Commander Richard E. Byrd will take off in the monoplane "America" for Paris Saturday if Nungesser and Gail are unsuccessful. The Post says Bert Acosta will replace the injured Floyd Bennett as copilot.

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Two eighteen o'clock this afternoon came with no definite word of the whereabouts of Captains Nungesser and Gail flying from Paris to this city. Thirty eight hours had passed since the plane had been sighted. A heavy rain storm and fog mantled the sea between New York and Boston.

Grave apprehensions were expressed, though hopes were generally maintained that the aviators would be able to conclude a successful flight.

If forced down at sea, the plane could reach about 24 hours.

The "White Bird," if she had maintained her schedule should have been off Cape Cod, Mass., about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

"The Nungesser plane White Bird sighted off Cape Race, N. F., at 10 a. m., today," was the word received today by the New York Times from Sydney, Nova Scotia. Should the report prove accurate and Captains Nungesser and Gail successfully pursue the remaining thousand miles of their course over the misty Atlantic, they should reach their goal of the Paris-New York flight about 8 o'clock tonight (eastern daylight time).

Earlier an unconfirmed report to the French Cable Company stated that the radio operator at St. Pierre, Miquelon, had received word that Nungesser had been sighted over New Foundland.

Premature Celebration
The Havas Agency in New York advised its home in Paris that they had a definite report from St. Pierre that the "White Bird" had been sighted at 8:15. Paris promptly staged a celebration. Later a St. Pierre dispatch stated that the plane had not been sighted.

The eastern Atlantic coast still finds within its grasp the success or failure of the flight. Reported off Cape Race, N. F., the aviators have yet about a thousand miles of sea to traverse under adverse weather.

The weather off New Foundland was clear but off to the southeast the air was winging their way with a lowering gas supply and facing mist and rain with low visibility.

Light Turned On
Aviators at Mitchell Field said that under present weather conditions, if Captain Nungesser could land in New York he would have performed a miracle greater than that of crossing the Atlantic.

Evidence of the distressing flying weather was had when Commander De Pinedo, Italian flier, was forced down in a heavy fog in Long Island sound on his flight to Philadelphia from Boston.

Inquiries at noon at the Radio Corporation and Independent Wireless Companies and steamship companies brought the response that no word had come from the "White Bird."

Mother Is Confident

Two Pan American Planes to Fly Over Lee County in June

The people of Dixon and community may have a chance to see—at long range—two of the United States Army Pan-American airplanes, which recently returned from their momentous "good will" trip throughout South America, for it has been announced that Major Herbert A. Dargue, commander of the South American flight, and companion fliers, will make a tour of mid-west industrial centers to explain the purposes and results of the trip.

The Rockford Chamber of Commerce has been advised that the planes will visit that city Thursday, June 16, and that they are being made for a big reception and meeting there. Simultaneously it was revealed that Major William H. McChord, U. S. A., Commander of the "Chapite" Field at Rantoul, Ill., has been invited to send an escort of planes to Rockford to accompany Major Dargue and his fellow fliers on their "hop" from Rockford to Springfield, which would take them over Lee county—and possibly Dixon.

DRIVE FOR PLUM HOLLOW COURSE ENDS THIS WEEK

Future of Golf Club is Dependent Upon Success of Campaign

A large force of members of the Plum Hollow Golf Club are at work this week soliciting memberships in the newly re-organized club, the fate of which will depend on their success in getting the required number of members before May 15, when the drive will end. These workers will make an effort to call on everyone who is interested in golf and the Plum Hollow course.

The club should have at least $1,000 in the treasury to start the season properly, and to assure the club being free from debt at the end of the season. The present membership fees—$15 for men and $7.50 for ladies and boys under 20—will be raised after the 15th to $18 for men and $10 for ladies and boys, so those who contemplate affiliating with the club and enjoying the fine course will profit by giving in their applications at once.

Plan Improvements
It is said by those who know that as a beauty spot and as a real sports golf course Plum Hollow cannot be excelled. If the membership drive is successful, a club house will be erected and the grounds will be placed in charge of the grounds at all times. The fairways and greens will be kept in first-class condition and much of the rough will be removed to make it a course anyone can enjoy playing on.

If golfers of Dixon who are not affiliated with any club want a golf course and do not wish to go out of town to play, they should respond with their membership and not wait until the season is half over before they pay their dues, said one of the promoters of the course today. "The members of the club are working hard and only with the moral and financial support of the public can it be put through with a bang. The club will be a benefit to Dixon and community as well as the players themselves, as golf is getting to be a greater sport every year and the people will naturally go where they can find the finest course."

Applications for membership can be made at the Chamber of Commerce, Eichler Brothers Annex, McCoy's Bootery and Sullivan's drug store.

RUTH SNYDER IS "SERPENT" SAYS LAWYER

Gray's Attorney Painted Her in Darkest Colors Today

New York, May 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Snyder was likened to a "poisonous serpent" who drew Judd Gray into her glistening coils so that he could not escape, in the summation of Gray's case today.

Previous to the address William Millard, of counsel for Gray, Scudder denied motions of defense for a mistrial.

Gray's counsel charged that Mrs. Snyder had planned to poison Gray on the same night her husband was killed. Only Gray's steady drinking of whiskey, the lawyer said, saved him.

Millard asserted Gray never struck Snyder with the sash weight. "He struck at him, but missed," the lawyer said, "and the blows that stunned Snyder were all delivered by a woman, Mrs. Snyder. Only luck saved Gray from being felled by Mrs. Snyder." He asked a manslaughter verdict in concluding his address.

After almost four hours' argument for the defense was completed. Adjournment was then taken for one hour.

Dana Wallace concluded his plea by asking that the jury find Mrs. Snyder not guilty.

Outlived Gray's Youth
After picturing the bright future which spread out, "Then suddenly," he said, "in 1925 a sinister, fascinating, unscrupulous woman came across his path. That woman, like a poisonous serpent, drew Gray into her glistening coils and there was no escape."

Millard said Gray turned to whiskey because he was enchanted by her stormy love.

"And while he was under the influence of drink," he said, "she inserted into his weakened mind her desire, her determination to kill her husband."

"This woman, hard as it is for me to say, tried to kill her husband herself at least four times."

"She had in tow this poor fellow Gray, gradually warping his mind, and when she failed again and again, she put him to her use. It was exactly as though he was under hypnotic influence," Millard stressed the fact that Gray and Snyder had never met before Judd Gray could not have had any reason of his own for getting Snyder out of the way."

"This poor fool," he said, "this poor goof, this poor helpless thing, went there because he had been told to."

Woman Left Two Bottles
Millard stressed that Mrs. Snyder had left a four ounce bottle and a quart bottle for Gray. "She meant him to drink from the quart until he was almost paralyzed and then she was going to give him the little bottle. But he drank it first. It made him sick. I think he immediately drank from the big bottle saved him from dying of the poison in the little bottle."

"Judd Gray never struck Snyder at all. He missed him, and Snyder was not struck at all, until Mrs. Snyder took the weight."

Millard said Gray had no motive, whereas Mrs. Snyder, if he plan went through got $96,000 insurance. Millard concluded by declaring "the extreme culpability of this poor defendant is manslaughter."

Dana Wallace for Mrs. Snyder declared that "this is a case of the people of New York and Henry Judd Gray against Ruth Snyder."

Wallace attempted to pick to pieces the opening statement made two weeks ago by counsel for Gray. He was heard to say "the moral and financial support of the public can it be put through with a bang. The club will be a benefit to Dixon and community as well as the players themselves, as golf is getting to be a greater sport every year and the people will naturally go where they can find the finest course."

Dress Caught Fire as it Brushed Against Stove Pipe

Lena, Burns sustained when her clothing came in contact with a hot stove pipe, caused the death early Saturday morning of Miss Caroline Kinnerien, 66, a resident here for more than 30 years.

Miss Kinnerien was dressing in her bedroom, which was directly above the kitchen, at the home of a brother-in-law, William E. Lutz, with whom she has long resided.

A stove pipe from the kitchen range furnished heat for her quarters. In some manner her clothing came in contact with the pipe and burst into flames.

Hears Woman's Screams
Lutz, summoned by the woman's screams, rushed to her aid and extinguished the fire by smothering it with blankets. Miss Kinnerien was unconscious when rescued, and died later.

Federal Board of Arbitration Told So by Attorneys Today

Chicago, May 9.—(AP)—The agricultural west, hardest hit by post-war depression, and slowest to recover, cannot stand an increase in railroad rates, which must follow if a federal board of arbitration grants wage increases to the westmen, yardmen, baggage-men, conductors, brakemen, and baggage-men, conductors for the carriers today told the board.

In replying to the arguments of representatives of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who for ten days have been introducing testimony to support their demands, the attorneys said earnings of western roads were less than those of the eastern roads.

The carriers are presenting their side of the controversy through H. A. Scandrett, Omaha, vice president and legal adviser to the Union Pacific and K. E. Burgess, Chicago, counsel for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy.

"If any increase is granted it must be at the expense of the general public, either in increased rates or impaired service," Mr. Burgess said.

Railroad earnings in the west are far from large enough to absorb wage increases without having their effect felt by the traveling and shipping public."

It is estimated that if the 7 1/2 per cent raise granted trainmen in the south and east is also extended to the trainmen of western roads it will add $13,000,000 to the roads' wage cost.

In 1924, western roads earned 4.45 per cent on their property investment while the roads of the remainder of the country earned 5.63 per cent, Mr. Scandrett declared. Earnings of the western roads declined $138,000,000 between 1920 and 1926 while in the remainder of the United States they increased $361,000,000.

Freight rates are on a relatively lower basis in the west than in the other sections of the country, the attorneys asserted, the average rates in western territory now being 26 per cent higher than in 1911 while elsewhere they are 58 per cent higher.

Asserting the trainmen are being paid reasonable wages, the carriers cited salary averages as follows:

Passenger conductors, $2,892 yearly; conductors in through freight service, $2,685; conductors on local and way freight trains, $2,163; passenger brakemen, $2,056; freight brakemen, $2,369; yard brakemen and helpers, $2,045; average yard train service, $2,145; average, all train service, $2,331.

SCORES MADE ESCAPE FROM FALLING BLDG.

Miraculous Outcome of Building Disaster This Morning

Chicago, May 9.—(AP)—Nearly 100 customers and employees were believed to have escaped uninjured today when the Louis department store, a four story structure, collapsed in a mass of ruins on the West Side.

Louis Goldblatt, proprietor, declared that ten minutes before the building dropped, a cracked wall had given warning and he had sounded an alarm, getting most if not all to the street in safety.

Mrs. Mae McGinnis, a clerk, was hurled from the fourth story and badly injured.

Walls fell in and the entire building was smashed to a heap of ruins.

Many persons were at first believed to have been trapped and killed or injured, but after an hour of digging at the ruins neither dead nor injured was found, and the authorities then accepted Mr. Goldblatt's belief that most of them had escaped.

After a check up of employees, Mr. Goldblatt announced all had been accounted for. He said that ten minutes before the collapse he felt the building quiver. There was a crack in the wall and the warning he said, enabled him to give the alarm to customers and employees and get them out.

Police and fire officials, however, took no chances and 200 city laborers were ordered to dig at the wreckage.

Goldblatt said his brother Joseph, standing across the street, saw a figure appear on the walls of the building near the top.

Many Were in Store
He hastened into the store and Louis Goldblatt immediately started warning employees and patrons.

The store employed 25 persons. Nearly 100 customers were reported to have been in the structure, attracted by a special sale.

The collapse was attributed to excavating at an adjoining site for addition to the store.

A dozen fire companies and police were rushed to the scene.

Mrs. Mae McGinnis, a clerk was hurled from the fourth and topmost floor and badly injured.

Firemen and police were unable to get into the debris but mounted the top and began tearing at the crumpled roof.

A slight rumbling was the only warning before the structure crashed in like an egg shell.

Crowd Gathered Quickly
One witness saw only three girls escape and they ran screaming down the street. Thousands quickly massed near the ruins, many of them frantic with fear for the safety of relatives.

All four walls seemed to have toppled inward toward the center, folding up much like a box. It was only a few seconds after the three girls fled that the front wall crashed.

An odor of gas soon permeated the neighborhood, but firemen who had expected a possible blaze, found no fire danger.

Store managers doubted that a large number of people were trapped. They said a crack in a wall had given a warning.

Others in the neighborhood—the store was at 1213 1/2 West Chicago Avenue, believed that many of the shoppers and employees had been trapped.

Davenport Woman Crowded Off Highway East of City
Mrs. H. O. Runyan of Davenport, Iowa, was cut about the hands and bruised about the head when the Jewett sedan she was driving, was crowded into the ditch and overturned on the Lincoln Highway near the Crawford filling station Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock. It was reported that two cars were racing east and in passing the Iowa car forced it to one side of the road and into the ditch. Mrs. Runyan was taken to the Dixon hospital where her injuries were dressed and the car was towed to a local garage, badly damaged. Other occupants of the car escaped with minor injuries.

Children Set Fire to Barn Early This Morn
Children playing with matches in a barn at the home of Wallace Eatin, 329 North Dixon avenue, this morning about 8:30, set fire to a bale of straw. Neighbors discovering smoke pouring from the structure summoned the fire department and the fire was extinguished with slight damage.

Closing Merchant School Friday

Friday closed a very successful school year at the Merchant school, near Harmon. About noon patrons of the school and visitors to the number of fifty or more arrived with well-filled baskets which everyone enjoyed. After dinner songs and stunts were enjoyed by the children. The boys enjoyed a rousing game of baseball. Margaret Mann has the distinction of having a perfect daily grade in spelling for the past two years she has been in school. Elaine Kravoy and Menno Miller received honorable mention for being perfect in attendance during the year. Mrs. Kravoy has consented to return next year which will be her fourth year.

THE CHILD THEATRE MOVEMENT

(By Olive Roberts Barton.) There is at least one specialist in child movies in the United States. I was interested in reading about the real interest, intelligence, and last but not least, heart, he puts into his business. His name is Charles W. Dimick of Boston.

One of my mother is clean and instructive shows for children. I believe it is coming steadily. Indeed it has already arrived. There is a movement for the child theater that has already found expression in several of our big cities.

But the LaRoche Theater, Boston, is not a child's theater. What Mr. Dimick has done could be done in almost any regular moving picture house, particularly in rural, suburban, or neighborhood communities.

Almost any mother will agree with me that it is very nearly an impossible task these days to keep children away from movies. If they are not allowed to go they are dubbed "queer" or "goody" among their playmates. And mothers have grown to know that unusual discipline that calls undue attention to a child has the same effect as unusual clothes.

It makes him sensitive, unhappy and self-conscious. Besides, why should we have to avoid movies? I've learned a lot from movies in actual knowledge and I hope I learn a lot more. Good shows that children may see on Friday night and all day Saturday is Mr. Dimick's method. At those times he has an eye out for special things for the children. If the regular feature is too sophisticated he debases lines and scenes or throws out the show, takes his loss and gets another. He lets the children sing with good instructors, gives prizes for good behavior, and in every way makes it a children's party.

Lucky the mothers who live in his neighborhood. These youngsters are not likely to go home and say the show was "no good because she died and he had to go home to his wife."

Good Thoughts for Good People

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

Spirituality is best manifested on the ground, not in the air. Rapturous day-dreams, flights of heavenly fancy, longings to see the invisible, are less expensive and less expressive than the plain doing of duty.

Gentleness is the outgrowth of benignity.

Meditation is the life of the soul; action is the soul of meditation; honor is the reward of action; so meditate, that thou sayest do; so do, that thou mayest purchase honor; for which purchase, give God the glory.

Without kindness, there can be no true joy.

The inevitable conclusion must sooner or later be drawn by all that hope, faith and love, and other spiritual qualities are forces which must be acknowledged as triumphant over all the discords of materiality, and that they are ever drawing men onward and upward toward the goal of perfection, where good alone persists.

The WOMAN'S DAY by AILENE SUMNER

Boys will be boys. They've thrown a barbed wire entanglement about St. Hilda's College, one of the women's colleges of Oxford University, all because the male under graduates insist on serenading the girls on co-ed property, and even invading their sacred citadel. To be sure, the boys did not begin the invasion until they were forbidden to serenade. Then they began scaling waterspouts, sneaking up fire escapes, and taking any means to send cold chills up an down a matron's spine. Now the barbed wire is up. "Away, bad women!" which is just one more reason why I have no patience with middle aged women of Victorian ideas having jobs with girls. Nothing can so injure a girl as exposure to the idea that men are evil, strange creatures whose serenading must be stayed off, even with barbed wire, if necessary.

MALE "STEP-INS"

Not a few he-haves have been spent on the fashion note that males, stalwart, doughty males, will wear "step-ins" on their manly forms this year. The "step-ins" must be fashioned of charming pastel shades—orchid, apple green, lavender, flesh, mauve, baby blue, and perhaps even vempy black georgette with lace edgings and insets. Peach, I believe, is said to be the favorite shade. And why not, and what of it? There is tradition, I believe, that women like the conventional, ugly, uninteresting, drab, plain clothes that men wear—that they are masculine, et al. Well, we do it. And if the males think they can make us mad by matching our peach step-ins they have another guess coming. Haberdashery windows will be interesting places wherein to gaze.

BABY MURDER

Baby Tommy Ruby, aged 4, got the loaded family revolver, sneaked up behind his mother as she was planting garden seeds, and killed her. Tommy was made because his mother would not let him play with matches. When the coroner came, Tommy got the family bread knife and almost stabbed him. When they said, "Poor baby! you can't blame him; he doesn't know what he has done," Tommy yelled, in a rage that he did, too, know what he had done; that he was glad he killed her—now he could play with matches. It takes a psychological analysis to say just what all Tommy—just how abnormal he is. He is precocious, certainly, to even know that guns and sharp knives mean death. But I am inclined to think that Tommy really performed an act of mercy of his mother when he killed her. She has been spared much.

STEP OUT NOW AND THEN TO REFUEL SPIRITUALLY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mark Sullivan in his book "Our Times" makes this philosophical remark: "Restlessness turned in upon itself ferments into something a little bitter."

His reference was made to an era in the country's history when the free lands of the west were closed, and that Mecca for the dissatisfied, the unsuccessful and the oppressed was a thing of the past.

What is true of a country is true of people. Once there was a woman who always kept three pickets off the backyard fence. Her husband was a grumbler and life was hard. She worked all day cooking and cleaning and washing and scrubbing, then when night came and she was about dead, to have her grumbling stingy husband come in and find fault was more than she could bear.

Back of the kitchen was her garden and around the garden was the fence. When things came to the stage that she wanted to throw the teakettle, she opened the kitchen door and slipped through the gap in the fence. The gate "might have stuck" and when she wanted to get away she had to get away "quick."

What she did thereafter is not important. The thing is that it was better to get away and to know she could get away at the psychological moment than to stay and brood and grow bitter.

It is largely our own fault when we paint ourselves into a corner. Every one has a right to an outlet, a safety-valve. Who has a better right than Mother, for instance, when spring fever is flourishing, to prop up a note on the sugar bowl saying that there is plenty of food in the refrigerator for lunch and she has gone out to see the blossoms at Aunt Clara's?

Any woman who has enough

OLD MASTERS

From too much love of living,
From hope and fear set free,
We thank with brief thanksgiving
Whatever gods may be,
That no life lives forever;
That dead men rise up never;
That even the wisest die.

Then star nor sun shall waken,
Nor any change of light;
Nor sound of waters shaken;
Nor any sound of sight;
Nor wintry leaves nor vernal,
Nor days nor things diurnal,
Only the sleep eternal.

In an eternal night.

LONELY AGE.

Now that he is 93, the well-known Mr. Chauncey Depew announces that he likes old age well enough but that it is a bit lonely; he has, he says, no one to play with any more.

This is a predicament liable to anyone who persists in living beyond his allotted three score and ten. As the years slip by the old friends, one after another, slip away, too; and presently one finds one-self pretty much alone, host to a crowd of ancient memories but quite solitary in the world of flesh and blood figures.

There is, apparently, little help for it. For while we grow old the world, unaccountably, stays young. Not only do our friends leave us and pass on; our most cherished beliefs and ideals seem to get left behind in the procession, and we find that notions that seemed so advanced a few years ago are now out-molded and quaint.

This is no new complaint. Doubtless Methuselah felt rather out of it, toward the last, and pined for the good old days a few centuries ago. Very likely he was given to wondering, at times, whether it really did live longer than anyone else; the great grandchildren of his old cronies must have seemed dreadfully modern and boyenish to this declining graybeard.

Being alone, either in old age or at any other time, seems to have terrors for us Americans. We rack our ingenuity to devise means to escape it; we organize clubs by the score, we flock to theaters and ball games and the like; we are even addicted to doing our traveling in "tours," so that we may always be surrounded by companions. Yet, sooner or later, we must accept loneliness as our lot, and subsist as best we can on our own inner resources.

And it is right here that our lives seem to be faultily constructed. A lifetime devoted to the selling of automobiles, the drawing-up of legal documents or the maneuvering of railroad trains is filled with action, but it has few heart-warming memories that can be drawn upon later. We spend all of our forces in working, and at the last we find that our inner selves have somehow shriveled and become pithless.

Age is not unenviable if it has a background. If life has been rich and full, age will have hidden reservoirs on which to draw. Age, to be sure, will always be somewhat melancholy; but it need not be tragic.

It all depends on the foundations we lay in our earlier years.

USED TO MIRACLES.

We are used to miracles, in these days, and we hardly pay any attention to them any more.

Perfection of the television apparatus, by which a man speaking over the telephone can see the face of the man at the other end of the line, in a distant city, is one of the most amazing things that modern science has done.

But we're used to it. It fails to excite us. In a few years' time the device may be in general use; if it is, probably we will take it as a matter of course, and cuss the phone company if the pictures we see are the least bit blurred.

Science has made us just a bit hard-boiled.

BARBARISM; NOT FAR OFF.

The civilized twentieth century still rubs elbows with black barbarism, however much the fact may be hidden beneath the everyday manifestations of enlightenment.

Havana is probably as up-to-date and cultured as the average city. Yet only the other day police there intervened just in time to save a girl from being offered as a human sacrifice. The girl had been kidnapped by order of a voodoo "doctor," who said that a sacrifice would be the only means of ridding one of his clients of disease.

That belief dates back to the very dawn of civilization. Yet it exists side by side with all the refinements of 1927. Truly, the job of civilizing mankind has not yet been completed!

BE GENEROUS!

President Coolidge's call for funds to relieve distress in the Mississippi valley flood district should be given a hearty and generous reception.

The need is great. Men who have surveyed the region say that years of progress have been wiped out! that thousands of people have lost every possession they had; that when the flood subsides the south will find itself faced by the worst problem of reconstruction since the Civil War.

In a case like this we who are more fortunate cannot hesitate. We are a rich nation, and we have a reputation for generosity. There is but one answer we can make to this appeal.

We must give, and give abundantly.

Schools for refugee children are being established throughout the Mississippi flood area. Even during a flood a fellow can't have any fun.

Pink sea monsters have been discovered in Canada. The tourist movement from the states got an early start this year.

Those Chinese are going to be about the business of war for a long time, it seems. Then just think how much longer it'll take to find out who won it!

Did you ever notice that a lady is seldom outspoken?

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Times watched the zebra race and gallop all around the place. Then Clowzy said, "I'm game to ride. Just help me on his back. There really is no cause for fright. He has two heads: I'll hang on tight." Then, after he was seated, they all heard a big whip crack.

Old Daffydoe stood right nearby. "Come on! Giddap!" they heard him cry. And then the zebra started off and Clowzy yelled, "Hurray!" The zebra then gave one big bound, and tossed poor Clowzy all around. He shortly found that riding was a heap more work than play.

The other Times laughed aloud. To see him hang on made them proud. Then Daffydoe came running forth, and in a voice quite shrill, said, "That will be all for today." The zebra promptly came his way, and, before they knew it, he was standing very still.

Wee Clowzy slid off safe and sound, and felt much better on the ground. No other Tiny cared to ride, so Daffydoe said, "Well, let's go to yonder berry patch and see what berries we can snatch. If there's enough we'll have a meal. That sure will be swell!"

He had some baskets at his side, and as they started, Clowzy cried, "I'll fill a basket up ahead of everyone. Let's have a berry-picking race. Old Daffydoe can set the pace. And say, no matter who may win I'll be a lot of fun!"

They all began to pick real fast. An hour or two went floating past. Then Daffydoe said, "We've enough. Your strength you'd better save. We've packed a lot of baskets tight, so we will have a feast tonight." And soon the very happy bunch were hiking toward the cave.

The "Tiny" feast is interrupted in the next story.

Editor's Note:—This is the first of a series of articles on the civic achievements of various American municipalities. These articles, which tell how other cities have solved problems that face every city, will appear daily.

BY DON E. MOWRY,
Secretary, the American Community Advertising Association.

The steady rise in municipal tax rates has been one of the most pressing problems, of late years, that American cities have had to face. But Ponca City, Okla., is one place where this problem doesn't apply.

The reason? Ponca City has a municipal electric light plant which is on a business basis.

This light plant has cleared approximately $50,000 in the past five years, although its rates are no higher than elsewhere in Oklahoma.

The city has been offered a million dollars for the property—but it laughs at all offers.

More than $330,000 has been diverted from the profits to the general revenues of the city government—a saving of that amount to the taxpayers.

The present maximum tax levy in Ponca City is only 5 mills, and the money raised by taxation for general fund purposes is only $35,000 a year.

How many other cities of over 2000 population can get along on a tax revenue of that size?

Not long ago it was necessary to make some improvements in the light plant. Public confidence was such that there was no trouble in floating a bond issue of $300,000, which is to be paid back out of the profits at the rate of $50,000 a year.

The net income from the plant in 1926 was $156,085.

TO ALL HOLDERS OF
SECOND LIBERTY LOAN BONDS
NOTICE OF REDEMPTION
All outstanding Second Liberty Loan 4 per cent bonds of 1927-42 (Second 4's) and all outstanding Second Liberty Loan Converted 4 1/2 per cent bonds of 1927-42 (Second 4 1/2's) are called for redemption on November 15, 1927, pursuant to the terms of their issue. Interest on all Second 4's and Second 4 1/2's will cease on said redemption date, November 15, 1927.

Holders of Second 4's and Second 4 1/2's will be entitled to have the bonds redeemed and paid at par on November 15, 1927. Such holders may, however, in advance of November 15, 1927, be offered the privilege of exchanging all or part of their bonds for other interest-bearing obligations of the United States. Holders who desire to avail themselves of the exchange privilege, if and when announced, should request their bank or trust company to notify them when information regarding the exchange offering is received.

Further information may be obtained from any Federal Reserve Bank or branch, or from the Commissioner of the Public Debt, Treasury Department, Washington.

A. W. MELLON,
Secretary of the Treasury.
Washington, May 9, 1927.

In all, within five years there will be an investment of $15,000,000.

Most important of all, these new industries will employ approximately 7000 men and women, adding $100,000 to the payrolls of the city every week.

Parkersburg realizes that hard-surfaced roads radiating from its center are business-getters. Bond issues and other means are building them and keeping them in shape.

In addition, the improvement of the Ohio river waterway is going to be a help. By 1930 Parkersburg will be able to take advantage of a nine-foot channel from Pittsburgh to the sea. The human element is not neglected, either. Charitable organizations get a support equivalent to $3 per inhabitant.

SINNER

Churchill did not cross-examine Purdy, since the man's story dovetailed exactly with the account of Cherry's doing on that fatal Thanksgiving night which she herself would tell when she was called to take the stand in her own defense.

"Call Mr. Ralph Cluny, Jr." Banning directed the clerk.
The young assistant district attorney, grandson of the murdered man, appeared superbly unconscious of the ripple of excited interest that swept the rather bored audience as he took the stand. He was a thin, slight, young man, with straight, sandy hair smoothly brushed over a narrow head. His pale grey eyes, so like his dead grandfather's, gleamed persistently behind thick-lensed glasses.

After Banning has established the relationship of the witness to the murdered man he asked abruptly: "Mr. Cluny, when did you last see your grandfather alive?"

"At about four o'clock on Thanksgiving day, in the afternoon," young Ralph answered precisely.

"Where did you see him, Mr. Cluny?"
"At his home. My father, Alexander Cluny, and I had dined with my grandfather. Father left the house at about three, but at my grandfather's request, I remained with him until four."

"Was he in good spirits, happy over his approaching wedding?" Banning asked.

"He was in good spirits until about an hour after dinner, when he began to suffer from indigestion," the young man answered. His pale eyes flashed indignation when a few in the audience laughed.

"Was there any conversation between yourself and your grandfather relative to his prospective bride?"

"After my father left, yes. My grandfather seemed depressed and unhappy over the family's disapproval of his marriage, and fearful of the effects upon his health of a three month tour of Europe. I asked him why he did not call the trip off, and he answered to this effect, 'My little girl has her heart set on going to Europe, and I'm afraid to cross her.'"

"He used the word 'afraid'?" Banning demanded loudly.

"Yes, sir," he said, "I'm afraid to cross her. She's a mighty sweet girl when she has her own way, but she has the devil of a temper, my boy."

Banning questioned the grandson a few moments longer, but elicited nothing else of importance.

There was a sharp edge of sarcasm to Churchill's booming, rich voice as he opened fire upon the witness.

"Your grandfather was in the habit of making you his confidant in his affairs of the heart?"

"And yet he criticized to you the girl he was going to marry, the girl whom he knew the family hated because she would be an heiress to a large part of his fortune?"

Banning's furious objection was sustained by weary old Judge Grimshaw.

"That is all, Mr. Cluny," Churchill said.

CALL BY NUMBER ON YOUR TOLL CALLS, IF YOU CAN.

WHEN YOUR ENTER BY TELEPHONE ANNOUNCE YOUR NAME

Say: "Hello," "What number is this?" and "Who is speaking?" wastes your time and that of the person you call.

As soon as your party answers, the correct practice is to ANNOUNCE YOUR NAME and start the call in the same direct manner that you use in a face-to-face meeting.

Say: "Mr. Jones speaking. I should like to talk with Mr. Smith," or

"Jones speaking, Mr. Smith, please," or If Mr. Smith has answered with his name, say, "This is Mr. Jones."

And when you answer a telephone ALWAYS announce your name first.

dismissed him contemptuously. When Banning had dismissed the witness also, he rose and addressed the court:

"We have presented our case, your honor. The state rests!"

A half-dozen local reporters dashed for exits, the jury stopped yawning and looked intensely relieved; the audience buzzed with surprise and excitement.

TOMORROW: Cherry faints in court.

RESCUING THE HOMELESS IN THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER FLOODS

NEA Cameraman on Rescue Boat Gets Graphic Picture Story of Tragic Flood Conditions Around Vicksburg

An NEA Service photographer recently accompanied one of the rescue boats working in the flooded area around Vicksburg, Miss. The graphic story of his trip from the time refugees were picked off small boats, houseboats and trees until the homeless were safe in a refugee camp is told in the pictures above.

The small boats shown in this picture are bringing in nearly 350 refugees rescued from trees, barns, lofts, house tops and levees in area around Holly's Bluff in the Yazoo delta of Mississippi, north of Vicksburg. The extent of the flood is indicated by the fact that this picture was taken nearly 25 miles from the main channel of the Mississippi river with nothing but water between the two points.

The houseboat of Governor Murphy, shown in this picture, rescued a large number of refugees north of Vicksburg.

Nearly 800 people were rescued from this bridge near Holland's Landing, Miss., by the Randall, a river boat, after they spent two days there without food. When this picture was taken a few hours later the water was sweeping over the floor of the bridge. It was necessary to leave the horses shown on the bridge, as there was no room for them on the rescue boat.

This picture shows the rich plantation of Houston Bros., near Murphy, Miss., on the Sunflower river, with the flood waters up to the roofs of the big barns.

Thousands of little children are being cared for in the Red Cross refugee camps. This picture shows a little tot in one of the camps at Vicksburg, anxiously awaiting her cup of milk.

Ministers are holding services in some of the camps. Here is the "parsonage" at the Vicksburg camp.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, selects three girls from his establishment to come into his home as his wards for one year, because he believes they have worthy ambitions which he wants to further. Billy Wells is the only one of the three that is sincere. She wants to become a concert violinist. NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON lie to enjoy his generosity.

Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMANE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hostess, but she fears he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton. In spite of this infatuation, Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living in the Wells home in the poor part of town, working in the Truman factory by day and writing music at night.

The girls, unknown to T. Q., learn that he intends to adopt one of them when the year is over and to gain his affections, a series of intrigues follow which strangely involve not only the girls, but Mrs. Meadows, EDDIE HANNING (Nyda's stepmother of fourteen days), and Dal Romane. Billy loses interest in her music and goes away for a month.

She believes she has rented Romane from her heart but on her return finds his spell as potent as ever. Billy lunches with Dal and begs him to assure her that he cares nothing for Winnie. In his disarming frank way, he tells her that he loves her. When she asks him to explain why Eddie Hanning should have attacked him while he (Romane) was walking with Nyda, Romane starts her with the remark: "You haven't a thing in the world to fear from Nyda Lomax."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

"CAN you spare me a few moments in the library, Mr. Curtis?" Mrs. Meadows rose from the luncheon table one day in late May, with an air of purpose dominating her majestic, wrinkled old face.

Nyda Lomax, Billy Wells and Winnie Shelton exchanged questioning glances. "Meadows has the children this afternoon. Nyda hasn't she?"

"Yes, Mr. Curtis."

At half past two Nyda invaded Billy's room, her handsome black eyes cloudy with sulky anger.

"Well, I guess I was right," she began disgustedly, as he flung herself across Billy's bed. "Meadows has been putting some kind of bug in T. Q.'s ear. He's still in the library, and no one knows whether he's going back to the office or not. I guess I'll take care of the brats myself this afternoon, Billy. Thanks just the same for being willing to help me out. But if T. Q.'s going to hang around here I'd better be on the job."

"They're really darling youngsters, all of them, Nyda," Billy remarked. "Don't you have any fun with them at all? I really enjoy playing with them."

"Then I wish you'd picked out my life's ambition!" Nyda flung at her bitterly.

At four o'clock T. Q. Curtis climbed the stairs slowly to the second floor. At the door of the bedroom which had belonged to his son, T. Q. paused, loath to enter the room which held so many memories of the boy he loved. He was loath not only to revive painful memories, but to carry out the program of spying which he had set for himself. But at last he turned the key softly in the lock, and let himself noiselessly into the room.

The kindergarten which he had fixed up for Nyda adjoined Clay's bedroom, was, in fact, the sitting room of the suite, and had been used by Clay as a combination library and music room. The partition between the two rooms was thin, the door quite flimsy.

He noiselessly turned the key and then the knob, so that the door swung open a trifle, sufficiently for him to see whatever went on in the twins."

"I think"—T. Q. rose abruptly—"that I'd prefer not to discuss the matter any more right now. Nyda has the children this afternoon. Nyda hasn't she?"

"Yes, Mr. Curtis."

At half past two Nyda invaded Billy's room, her handsome black eyes cloudy with sulky anger.

"Well, I guess I was right," she began disgustedly, as he flung herself across Billy's bed. "Meadows has been putting some kind of bug in T. Q.'s ear. # SPORTS OF ALL SORTS THRILLS OF GOLF AS RECALLED BY EXPERT ON GAME

O. B. Keeler Tells of
Rise of Stirling
Who Won Title

BY O. B. KEELER
Atlanta—Among the golfing records in America which are likely to endure, one by Mrs. Wilbert Grieve Fraser, of Ottawa, Canada—made when she was Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta—will find an eminent position in the books.

Beginning in 1916, at the Belmont Country Club, just out of Boston, Miss Stirling, an auburn-haired girl of 17, became the National Woman champion of the United States and retained the title continuously through 1920, or five years. In two of these years the championship was not held, due to the war. But she defended it in 1919 and again in 1920, and since then, up to 1926, she has been a steady and formidable contender, three times being runner-up and once a semi-finalist.

No woman ever in American golf has such a record for consistently high positions in the national championship. Among the critics, too, she remains the commanding choice when it comes to style and method. Other girls have been able to hit the ball farth, though Alexa always has been able to keep pretty well up with the Joneses of them. But it generally is conceded among the professionals and the best informed critics that no American woman has equalled her firm, crisp and reliable play with the iron, that department in which women traditionally are weak.

The influence of her famous teacher, Stewart Maiden, also precursor to Bobby Jones, is so marked that more than once some golfer from abroad has identified her teacher simply by seeing her swing. Her style now is far more exactly that of Stewart Maiden than that of Bobby Jones, copied from the same master. Illness last year kept Mrs. Fraser out of tournament play, but it is understood she now is practicing regularly, that her health is completely restored and that she will be in the Canadian and United States national championships in 1927.

Among her other conquests are the Southern championship twice, the Metropolitan championship twice, and the Canadian national championship. But her greatest thrill must have come in her first American championship.

Alexa took up golf at the wish of her father, Dr. A. W. Stirling, partly as an outdoor exercise for her health and partly as an antidote from too earnest devotion to the violin, an instrument upon which she is a skilled and gifted performer. She often has said she preferred the violin to golf.

TY'S RETURN TO DETROIT MAY BE DEEPLY GLOOMY

Former Idol of Fans in Michigan City Still Under Suspension

Chicago, May 9—(AP)—Ty Cobb's triumphant return Tuesday to Detroit where for a fifth of a century he wrote records in the baseball books, seemed destined today to one of gloom.

With the governor of Michigan and mayor of Detroit, to say nothing of an elaborate fan banquet and a gift automobile ready, Cobb remained under suspension for his altercation last week with the umpire at Philadelphia.

Adding to Ty's troubles was a

Ban Johnson let it be known that he regarded Cobb's offense at Philadelphia as particularly serious. Cobb's only hope that the suspension will be lifted lies in the report to the league of Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics. President Johnson said. Meanwhile Detroiters have telegraphed Johnson with pleas that the suspension be lifted.

Kings of Sports in Appeal for Citizen Military Training

Chicago, May 9—America's kings of sport—Ruth, Tunny, Paddock, Tilden and Weissmuller—have signed an appeal to the youth of the country to enroll at once for the Citizens' Military Training Camps "for health, character and leadership."

Their signed statements appear in an official pamphlet just published by the War Department. Thousands of copies are to be distributed to schools, colleges, boys' clubs, rural post offices and factories, offices and stores throughout the country.

Ruth praised the outdoor life and citizenship studies of the camps. Tunny urged indoor workers to attend. Paddock, "the fastest human," called the camps "a remarkable opportunity for physical development." Tilden declared the camp life adds vigor for sport or business life. Weissmuller, world's swimming record holder, recommended the training to aspiring athletes.

Knute Rockne, Bob Zuppke of Illinois; Bill Roper of Princeton; T. A. D. Jones of Yale; Alonzo Staag of Chicago; and Fielding H. Yost of Michigan are among sixty leading football coaches of the country who have added their signatures to testimonials extolling the C. M. T. Camps.

Muddy Track in Prospect for Preakness this P. M.

Baltimore, May 9—(AP)—The sport of kings reaches its climax in Maryland today with the renewal of the historic Preakness. Fifteen of equine aristocracy were named to travel the mile and three sixteenths for $50,000. The schedule post time was 4 p. m. Meanwhile Baltimore was the Mecca for thousands of race followers. Several hours of rain yesterday and last night with cloudy weather forecast, promised a muddy track.

New Wealth

"The motor industry, directly and indirectly, has been the greatest single producer of new wealth in America for a quarter of a century," says Harper Leech.

The automobile has come to be a symbol of prosperity, not only among individuals, but among the nations of the world, and it is significant that in number of automobiles the United States ranks first.

The manufacture of automobiles and the manufacture of fuel to feed them are interdependent industries. Without gasoline the 23,000,000 motor cars and trucks in America would be useless machines.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has had an important part in the growth of the motor industry and the production of new wealth in this country.

By providing gasoline and lubricating oil to supply the needs of the motor vehicles of the Middle West, it has performed a necessary share of the work of building up the giant motor transportation system which has given jobs to millions—speeded up business—created new wealth—and raised the standards of living.

Every day on all the highways of the ten states of the Middle West the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is helping to make the wheels go round—wheels of business and wheels of pleasure.

The business of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a fundamental factor in the progress of the Middle West, intimately related to the lives of its thirty million people.

In carrying on its work of service, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is able to pay for and properly utilize a continuously improving standard of labor—providing well-paid jobs for thousands of men and women whose loyal work makes possible the success of the business.

As a result of its able and efficient management, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is able to produce new wealth from old, returning reasonable profits on the money invested in the Company's stock by its 50,000 shareholders, not one of whom owns as much as 5 1/4% of the total.

In addition to increasing the prosperity of millions of individuals in the Middle West, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) adds much to the wealth of the government, federal, state and municipal, through the taxes it pays.

The motor cars that throng the highways of the Middle West are symbols of new wealth. The torch of service and the Red Crown discs that dot those highways are signs of the new prosperity which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has helped to create.

SPORT SHORTS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Smashing victories by the Cardinals and Yankees left little doubt that the leaders of the major leagues have pitching powers as well as slugging force.

One of the finest hurling exhibitions seen this year was that by Rhem. He held the Robins to two hits for a 5 to 1 Cardinal win at Brooklyn. His teammate Hafey got two homers.

For the second time in two days the Yankees blanked the White Sox, the burden of their victory being borne by Pitcher Hoyt. Backed by errorless fielding and vicious hitting he held the Sox to nine scattered hits for a 9-0 win. Pat Collins was the home run hitter. A record crowd of 50,000 was present.

To make it even with Chicago Cubs the Giants nosed out a close 5-4 decision in the ninth at the Polo grounds. Detroit's 4-2 victory over the Red Sox, also was won in the ninth.

The west was victorious over eastern foes in the other two games. Cleveland, next to last in the American League, made it two straight over Philadelphia. St. Louis, sixth in ranking, topped the fourth place Senators 8-3.

Fathergill of the Tigers, for the first time in 18 games failed to make a hit and Frank Frisch of the Cardinals made his first error in 18 games.

Sound Your Klaxon in Time and Save the Fine

A Smashup—grinding brakes and the sound of falling glass—your appearance in the courtroom with the possibility of a heavy fine in addition to damages—all because your horn failed in an emergency.

Isn't it worth the price of a really dependable horn, a Klaxon, just to avoid the possibility of such an occurrence? A warning from your Klaxon will clear the road and leave you with conscience clear.

There are over two million Klaxons in use today. Can there be any more convincing testimonial as to their value and reliability?

Klaxons are made in a large variety of styles. There is one that will fit your needs exactly, both in style and in price. Motor driven Klaxons are made for every type of car, truck or motorcycle, they are the same uniform quality; durable, good looking and easy to install.
